

In-Silico* generation of molecular variants:

In optimizing a hit, it is necessary to generate molecular variants around the hit. In-Silico generation of such molecular variants and their subsequent evaluation by docking them to the binding site can be quite useful before proceeding for the actual chemical synthesis and biological testing of the compounds. Followings are some example generated by our in-house tool AMOLGEN.

